A cairn

is a manmade pile of stones, often in a conical form. They may mark the summit of a mountain or a memorial. Placed at regular intervals, they indicate a path across barren terrain or climbing routes.

The Jon Francis Foundation is dedicated to saving lives through wilderness safety education, empowering families who have suffered the loss of a loved one in the wilderness and advocating for legal protection for missing adults.

Jon Francis Foundation Undergoing Transition

For the past 5 years JFF has been led by Jon's parents, David and Linda Francis of Stillwater Minnesota. Following advice from other nonprofits the Francis' are working on a transformation from a family led foundation to a community asset and resource. A board of directors and special advisors were elected this year to lead JFF into the future.

To share the foundation's new direction, community leaders are organizing an informational and fundraising event on June 2, 2012. "We want the community to be engaged and informed about the vital and unique mission of the Jon Francis Foundation," said newly elected board chair, Sheila-Marie Untiedt. Please join community leaders and supporters who will share information with you about our past activities, current mission and future plans.

We look forward to seeing you.
